THE TRACK

Atmospheric Dark Pop with a cinematic build-up. Delicate female vocals that unexpectedly transition into a heavy, industrial-electronic beat drop at 2:55 — then dissolve back into silence.

*“I sing not to hold you, not to curse your name.
I sing to remember and walk away the same.”*

A woman makes a solitary night journey to a frozen lake — not to reclaim what she lost, but to release it. The track opens in near-silence before the full arrangement arrives like cold air hitting the lungs. Two emotional peaks flank a fracture point of absolute quiet at 2:01 — the music collapses to nothing, then rebuilds with even greater resolve. Bittersweet resolution. Wintry, precise, emotionally unhurried.

ARTIST BIO

OI Youna is an artist from Cyprus whose debut single Mirror Lake arrives fully formed — cinematic, wintry, and emotionally exact. Her sound is a deliberate step away from the dominant palette of contemporary pop: vintage textures from the early 2000s, reworked with care and restraint, shaped into something that feels both timeless and deeply personal.

Mirror Lake draws on an experience without a fixed owner — a story of release and reclamation that belongs to no single gender, no single loss. Told from a woman's perspective, it opens a larger cycle of which this is only the first chapter. A debut, and already a world.
